

Cultural Ecology of the Haudenosaunee

Thursday, October 22

Noon – 1:00pm

Erie Community College South
Building 3 | Room 3208

As European settlers moved west through what is now New York State, they discovered a vibrant, self-sufficient and politically sophisticated alliance of indigenous peoples making the most of Earth's rich resources. Join us for discussion and demonstrations on how the People of the Long House (Haudenosaunee/Iroquois), and in particular the Onödowa'ga: (Seneca), modeled their civilization upon the cycles, rhythms and systems of Earth through ceremony, food, medicine and recreation, a legacy still very much in practice in modern times.

Presenters:

Paul Fehringer of Wild Spirit Education
Mary Jo Graham of Oakmoss Education/ECC

A free presentation hosted by the Environmental Studies Program at Erie Community College South Campus
Dr. Ethel Petrou, Physics Chair